

MAR 3, 2021

West Valley nuclear waste site continues to impact former workers

By JAY MORAN

Tucked away in the hills of Cattaraugus County, a the former Nuclear Fuel Services reprocessing facility is generally out-of-sight and out-of-mind for most Western New Yorkers. It's a different story for those who worked there. Opened in 1966, the facility handled over 630 tons of radioactive fuel during its short life. Phil Gambini of Investigative Post has taken a closer look at how workers have been impacted and how they could be helped.

Listen (3:37 minute clip):

https://cpa.ds.npr.org/wbfo/audio/2021/03/03.03.21_gambini_two_way.mp3

Phil Gambini of Investigative Post discusses his most recent story with WBFO.