Environmental groups urge cover for WVDP Main Plant Process Building | News

The West Valley Coalition on Nuclear Wastes and 24 other environmental groups have joined in opposing the demolition of the Main Plant Process Building at the West Valley Demonstration Project without covering the building.

The groups are calling on Gov. Kathy Hochul and state legislative leaders “to prevent the spread of radioactivity including plutonium across the state and region during the upcoming open-air demolition of the high-level nuclear waste reprocessing building. It is slated to be leveled starting this fall without meaningful, timely offsite monitoring.”
